How to File an Issue in GitHub
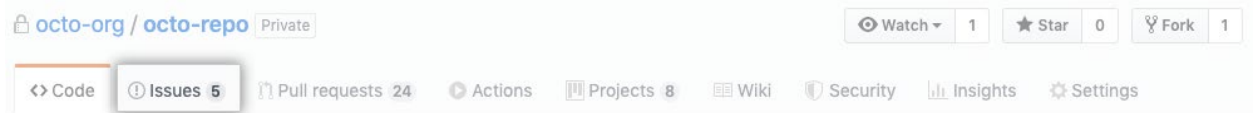

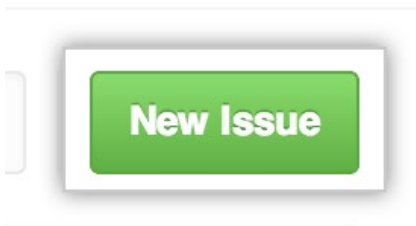

Github Issues are used to report bugs, request enhancements, or flag any items needing attention.

Note that you will need to have a (free) GitHub account in order to file issues. Sign up for an account at https://github.com/join.

1. On GitHub, navigate to the main page of the repository.
2. Under the repository name, click Issues.

3. Click New issue.

4. Type a title and description for your issue.

5. When you're finished, click Submit new issue.
